

TO REMOVE BITTERNESS BETWEEN ALL SECTIONS

Mrs. Daniels Urges Southern Women to Take Part in Eradicating
Lingering Antimilitarism.

ADDRESSES U. D. C. CONVENTION

Urges Preservation of Home-Life
History of South During War Between the States—Pays Tribute to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

SAVANNAH, GA., November 10.—Southern women should recognize and more fully accept the part they may play in eradicating any lingering antimilitarism between the North and the South, declared Mrs. Joseph Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, in an address at the opening session here to-night of the annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mrs. Daniels is here as a delegate from North Carolina, and spoke in response to an address of welcome.

"Let those of us who know of the travail of the sixties keep alive the memory of sacrifice, and the valor of the vanquished," she said. "But let us not look mournfully upon the past, but ask ourselves the question: 'How can Southern women of the twentieth century prove worthy of the sacrifices and transmit to their children the graces and virtues which were incarnated in the Southern women of the war and reconstruction periods?'"

"First of all we must know that love is greater than all hatred. Our children must be taught to love the flag of their country, and sons and daughters alike given to see the patriotism of those who were the heroes as well as of those who were the gray. It was said that Henry Grady 'died loving the country into peace.' This first duty of the daughters is to love all men and illustrate the best traditions of the South by permitting no mead of bitterness to mar or narrow our own lives or the lives of our children.

URGES PRESERVATION OF HOME-LIFE HISTORY

"Second, to preserve the history of the home-life history—of the South during the War Between the States. Southern histories in plenty tell of the glorious conflicts on land and sea. But there is a history that has not yet fully been written. There is untouched a history of heroines. There was stimulus to men who went to death marching to martial music under inspiring banners, poured out their lives in comradeship and labor and sacrifice and unutterable loneliness. Many stories of their deeds have been written, but more have been buried in the hearts of heroines who never expected honor or fame or sought the privilege of nursing their loved ones. But their daughters owe it to coming generations to illuminate the pages of literature by collecting and printing in permanent form these deeds.

"The third duty of the Daughters of the Confederacy is to keep fresh the memory of the brave men who fought for the gray. Let us cherish now that the snow that never melts has fallen on their heads, by the knowledge that sons and grandsons hold them in honor and point to their service as illustrative of the noblest knights of the race."

Mrs. Daniels paid tribute to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson as "the best type of Southern womanhood."

"When the whole nation mourned her untimely death," she said, "there was a solemn pride that the home of her youth was selected for the last repose. Her memory will live, but it will be our privilege as we decorate the graves of Southern heroes to ever keep before her last resting place and emulate her virtues, her graciousness and her practical helpfulness."

AMUSEMENTS

Colonial-Gravey Scott Company, in "Graumark," Lucille La Verne Company, in "The Escape," Lyric-Topical, vaudeville, matinee and night.
Bliss—"The Monte Carlo Girl" burlesque.
Superior-Pictures.

AS A ROMANCE "GRAUMARK"

IS—JUST GRAND!
Most of the romance and high adventure left in this little play, which is offered at the Colonial Theatre this week by the Gravey Scott Company. Whenever some one is not plotting to abduct Princess Yette, ruler of that storied country or to all Prince Lorenz, who seeks her royal hand in marriage, brave Grenfell Lorry, the stout-hearted American lad from Washington, D. C., seizes the moment to make ardent love to the princess. Miss Scott is Princess Yette, a very pretty and charming princess who at the American, so everybody knows at the American, so everybody knows that if they do mix the kingdom all up with the other kingdoms that they will get into a bad way. One time, they stand up in each other's arms for nearly a whole act and well set out the most beautiful things about each other that ever were told. He wears his uniform this time, but she isn't quite so much dressed up.
The play is so exciting and so romantic that it is a thing to happen to everybody before everything is straightened out between the princess and the American. The well—it's just grand, that's what it is.
Mr. Berthelet has provided an elaborate and striking production and the members of the company, for the most part, play "Graumark" for all it is worth. Of the principals, besides Miss Scott, who has been mentioned, Mr. Riddell gives the most notable performance in the part of Prince Lorenz. Mr. Newing, in the straight part of Harry Anguish, plays it chiefly for comedy, but Curtis, as Prince Lorenz, merits sincere commendation for two careful characterizations. Mr. W. C. Pinner, the leading man of the company, plays opposite Miss Scott, in the part of the American, and in the part of "Graumark" should prove one of the banner attractions of this company's season—certainly in point of attendance.

Douglas Gordon.

LUCILLE LA VERNE COMPANY

OFFERS FOURFOLD SURPRISE
In the almost uniform excellence of her stock production and apart from her individual expositions of her character acting, Lucille La Verne seems to have made a specialty, this season, of springing surprises upon the patrons of her company at the Lyric Theatre. Last week, for example, she offers a surprise that is at least fourfold.
First, she presents "The Escape," a play by James A. Marcus, Viola Fitzpatrick and Jack Crosby. By the way, the company, including Miss La Verne herself, performances of the character that might have been expected of them are given from Mr. Marcus, too, much is demanded—given—but Miss Fitzpatrick and Mr. Crosby appear in a new light.
But first to the play in brief. "The Escape" is a play by the dramatist, Paul Armstrong, contains enough material to form a dozen plays. The first act is after the order of "Kindling," and is quite as well written, by the way, as the second act, "Dramatic Goods," a lecture on eugenics and a sermon on sociology; the third contains a death scene that is gripping in its intensity, while the fourth is a dramatic monograph on homicidal mania and a love scene, tempered by an appeal to reason and ended by a man and a woman who have heard the call of suffering humanity.
Let La Verne is a sort of kindly sufficient to suggest her flawless performance. Mr. Arnold plays the doctor with so much sincerity and dignity that his frequent stumbling may be forgiven—almost. Miss Blaney enters with a soft piteousness that simply catches one by the throat, and Mr. Brown handles the bit part with his accustomed skill.
Mr. Marcus, who makes his first appearance in an important part with this company, not only merits, it is understood, the credit for the production and the wonderfully smooth direction under which the performance moves, but deserves the close attention of those who delight in fine acting. His presentation of the drunken father is so forceful, so compelling, that it would indeed be a revelation, even if he were not, in the formal sense, created the part when the play was first produced.
Miss Fitzpatrick plays the daughter with a fire and certainty, with an appreciation of the values of the part that taken together and viewed in the light of her other performance, make her work in the role a genuine revelation. And young Mr. Crosby, in a part far less easy than any in which he has appeared heretofore, is much more convincing than he has been at any time during the season.
Therefore, it is repeated that Miss La Verne offers at least a fourfold surprise at the Lyric this week, and that the company managed to create and sustain the surprise last night added still another element to its unity, for the audience, or a part of it, giggled and snickered so inexplicably and so incessantly that at times the actors would have been fully justified in asking for at least the outward observances of ordinary courtesy.

Douglas Gordon.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Negro Arrested in Post-Office Said to be Wanted in North Carolina.
Detective-Sergeant Krenzel yesterday arrested Wallace Williams, colored, as a suspicious character, suspected of being a fugitive from justice in North Carolina. Williams is alleged to be wanted on a murder charge. The negro was apprehended at the post office at the entrance to get a letter from the general delivery window and was locked in the First Precinct Station. He will be arraigned in Police Court to-day, and it is probable that the case will be continued until the local authorities time to communicate with the North Carolina police.

According to the information which the Richmond police have secured, the negro, whose real name is said to be Aaron Dupree, is alleged to have attacked and killed a white man, a farmer of Hoke County, on the night of December 18, 1913. Brown put up a stout resistance, and was killed by the negro before the latter could make his escape. The police have been looking for him in this city for some time.

BREAD-MAKING EXHIBIT

Public Giving Opportunity to Inspect Modern Baking at Nolde Restaurant.

Every housewife is familiar to some extent with the simple process of breadmaking, but few are acquainted with the methods that have been devised to lift this world necessary of life out of the realm of the homemaker into that of the industrialized production class. In order to give the women and those interested in the development of Richmond industries an opportunity to study the process of making bread in the modern, scientific fashion, Nolde Brothers have issued an invitation to the public to inspect their new and enlarged plant at Twenty-sixth and E Streets, to-night and Thursday evening.

The visitors will have the privilege of witnessing the process briefly, the making from beginning to end. The affair will be in the nature of a reception, with refreshments, and the entire plant will be thrown open. The enlarged plant has a capacity of turning out 100,000 loaves of bread a day, and is said to be the largest bakery in operation south of Washington. Eighty workers are employed, and bread is shipped to most every point in Virginia and North Carolina, as well as in South Carolina.

The Nolde plant is the outgrowth of a little bakery launched twenty years ago at Twenty-sixth and Broad Streets on a capital of $150. It was started by William and Henry Nolde. Five brothers and nephews are members of the company, of which J. Henry Nolde is president. The "model bakery" occupies a floor space of almost 60,000 square feet.

Believe Me I Eat Everything

For I Know a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Will Digest Any Meal At Any Time.

How often do we see men who cannot eat and how often do we hear men boasting of their abilities to eat.

The secret of all health is digestion. The secret of digestion is the juices which are supplied by the body to separate the ingredients needed from those that are of no use to the system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

The Optimist—"Believe me, I give my body what it tells me to give it. I eat what I like, and I digest it, and I always enjoy my appetite, and then I eat a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet."

When a heavy meal has been eaten the entire body is called upon to furnish the digestive organs with forces to take care of it. The more the strain the weaker become the forces to take care of the next meal as well.

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet aids Nature in Nature's own way. These little tablets are filled with the very ingredients and enzymes so needful to every normal and perfect stomach.

One quality or ingredient of a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet will digest 3,000 times its weight in food. Think, if you can, what a big help this means to a depleted digestion. Other ingredients aid in building up the digestive juices and blood. The stomach and intestines have their duties lightened, and thus irritation, soreness and raw linings are permitted to be cured by the system naturally, quickly, harmlessly.

Thousands of dyspeptics and stomach sufferers would be glad to tell you what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have done for them. This is what makes these tablets sold in every drug store in this country, price 50 cents.

To any one wishing a free trial of these tablets please address F. C. Stuart, Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., and a small sample package will be mailed free of advertisement.
